Lab AInL®

Overview / Instructions / Disclaimer

Overview

GInI, Global Innovation Institute, formally accredits Innovation Labs capable of demonstrating world-class usage, management, and impact for their operating organizations.

GInI's Innovation Lab Accreditation is an all-or-nothing, assessment-based accreditation.

For more information on GInI's qualifying criteria for Innovation Lab Accreditation, and on the Innovation Lab Accreditation assessment process, please refer to GInI's Innovation Lab Accreditation Guidebook, available from GInI.

Instructions

The following application is to be completed in its entirety, in English. Proper names given in other languages should be indicated in their native language and an English translation provided if applicable.

There are three (3) parts to the application:

1. Date / Organization / Representative / ATAP®
2. The Innovation Lab
3. Outcomes / Results / Impact.

If the applicant deems a certain portion of this application to be non-applicable to their submission, they should so indicate by writing "not applicable" or "none" in the space provided.

Everything disclosed in this application is classified as confidential between the applicant and Global Innovation Institute.

Disclaimer Concerning GInI Innovation Lab Accreditation

GInI's accreditation of an organization's Innovation Lab is not an accreditation of that organization in its entirety.

GInI reserves the right to accredit the Innovation Lab of any organization without regard for their competitive status with other organizations whose Innovation Labs GInI may have also accredited, or may accredit in the future.
